George Bush

41st President

January 21, 1989 - January 20, 1993

"I know some. I know a fair amount." George Bush replying in 1988 to a question about UFOs while campaigning to become President.

"I am very careful in public life about dealing with classified information." Bush in 1988 debate with Dukakis

Of all the Presidents that have been faced with the UFO problem, George Bush seemed, on the surface, to be the best qualified President to have been given the secret. He spent a year as Director of Central Intelligence, the head of the entire United States Intelligence Community for President Ford. Then as DCI, he was in charge of giving intelligence briefings to Jimmy Carter during his transition to the Presidency in 1976.
